

BOARD MEMBERS WANTED

The Aboriginal Legal Rights Movement (ALRM) is seeking passionate and committed Aboriginal people to join its Board of Directors.

This is an opportunity to help guide one of South Australia's leading Aboriginal community-controlled organisations and contribute to improving access to justice and legal services for Aboriginal people across the state.

About the Role

Board Directors play an important role in providing leadership, strategic direction, and governance oversight to ensure ALRM continues to effectively serve Aboriginal communities throughout South Australia.

We are currently seeking applications to fill several Board vacancies, with additional positions potentially becoming available during the appointment period.

Who Can Apply?

We encourage applications from Aboriginal people who have skills, knowledge, or experience in areas such as:

Corporate Governance, Business Administration, Criminal Law, Civil and Family Law, Courts Administration, Youth Justice, Aboriginal Legal Service Delivery and Charities and Not-for-Profit Organisations

Previous board experience is desirable but not essential.

How to Apply

To request an application form, contact ALRM:
